Modern Slavery: Overview

It is a shocking fact that while most people consider the slave trade to have ended when slavery was abolished in 1833, there are more slaves today than ever before in human history. Figures from the International Labour Organisation (ILO) suggest that there are more than 40 million people in modern slavery across the world, with nearly 25 million held in forced labour.

Councillor Simon Blackburn

Chair, Local Government Association Safer and Stronger Communities Board (2017)

The Home Office estimated that in 2013 there were between 10,000 and 13,000 potential victims of modern slavery in the UK.

What is Modern Slavery?

Modern slavery is an umbrella term, encompassing human trafficking, slavery, servitude and forced labour. Someone is in slavery if they are:

- Forced to work through mental or physical threat
- Owned or controlled by an 'employer', usually through mental or physical abuse or the threat of abuse
- Dehumanised, treated as a commodity or bought and sold as 'property'
- Physically constrained or have restrictions placed on their freedom.

Servitude is similar to slavery, in that a person is under an obligation to provide a service which is imposed on them, but there is no element of ownership.

Forced work is defined as 'work or service' which is exacted from any person under the menace of any penalty and for which the person has not offered themselves 'voluntarily' and has been found in a number of different industries including manufacturing, food processing, agriculture and hospitality.

Finally, human trafficking is when men, women and children are moved and forced into exploitation. The movement could be international but also within the country, from one city to another or even just a few streets.

The UK was the third most common country of origin of adult potential victims in 2016 (see page 9).

A person is a victim of human trafficking even if they haven't yet been exploited but have been moved for the purposes of exploitation.

Types of Modern Slavery

Debt Bondage

This can be present in many forms of exploitation, and can take a range of forms. Debts may arise out of the exploitation itself, for example in relation to accommodation or travel fees, with victims having little or no control over their debt and little or no way to pay it back. Costs may be deducted from their wages, leading to further debts being accrued. A person may be forced to work to pay off the debt and it can also be used as a means of controlling a victim and keeping them enslaved.

Domestic Servitude

Victims work in a household where they may be ill-treated, humiliated, subjected to exhausting hours, forced to work and live under unbearable conditions or forced to work for little or no pay. In some cases forced marriage can lead to domestic servitude.

Financial Exploitation

For example benefit fraud, where benefits are falsely claimed by perpetrators on behalf of their workers; bank accounts being opened in a victim's name but used by perpetrators; or workers' wages being paid directly into the exploiters own bank accounts by companies who think they are paying a worker individually.

Forced Criminality

Victims can be forced to participate in a range of illegal activities including pick pocketing, shop lifting, cannabis cultivation, *county lines exploitation and other activities. The Modern Slavery Act 2015 Provides for a defence for victims who have been forced into criminality (see page 13).

*County lines is the police term for urban gangs supplying drugs to suburban areas and towns using dedicated mobile phone lines – these are the county lines. It involves child criminal exploitation (CCE) as gangs use children as well as vulnerable adults to move drugs and money.

Forced Marriage

Where people are forced into marriage for a range of reasons, including exploiting the rights conferred on them by citizenship, or for domestic servitude.

Labour Exploitation

A victim is made to work with little or no pay, and may face violence or threats. If they are foreign nationals, their passports may be confiscated by their exploiters and they may be made to live in terrible conditions and under constant threat.

Organ Harvesting

Victims are trafficked in order for their internal organs (typically kidneys or the liver) to be harvested for transplant.

Sexual Exploitation

Victims may be forced into sex work, pornography or lap dancing for little or no pay. They may be deprived of their freedom of movement and subjected to threats and violence.

The Typology of 17 Modern Day Slavery Offences

Labour Exploitation
1	Victims exploited for multiple purposes in isolated environments Victims who are often highly vulnerable are exploited for labour in multiple ways in isolated rural locations. Victims live on offenders’ property in squalid conditions, are subject to repeated abuse and are very rarely paid.
2	Victims work for offenders Victims are forced to work directly for offenders in businesses or sites that they own or control (some offenders may be gang masters). The main method of exploitation is not paying or illegally underpaying victims.
3	Victims work for someone other than offenders Victims are employed in a legitimate and often low-skilled job, with legal working conditions, by an employer unrelated to the offenders. Most or all of the wages are taken by offenders often through control of the victim’s bank accounts.
Domestic Servitude
4	Exploited by partner Victims are force to undertake household chores for their partner and often their partner’s relatives. If married, the marriage may have been arranged or forced and the servitude often occurs alongside domestic abuse and sexual exploitation.
5	Exploited by relatives Victims live with and exploited for household chores and childcare by family members, usually extended family. Many victims are children.
6	Exploiters not related to the victims Victims live with offenders who are often strangers. Victims are forced to undertake household chores and are mostly confined to the house.

Sexual Exploitation
7	Child sexual exploitation – group exploitation Children are sexually exploited by groups of offenders. This is usually for personal gratification, but sometimes the exploitation involved forced sex work in fixed or changing locations and will include characteristics of types 9 and 10. Offenders frequently transport victims to different locations to abuse them.
8	Child sexual exploitation – single exploiter Similar to type 7, often involves the grooming of children and transporting them for the purposes of sexual exploitation, although the offending is carried out by one individual.
9	Forced sex work in fixed location Victims are trafficked and exploited in established locations set up specifically for sex work. This can include brothels or rooms in legitimate business premises (e.g. massage parlour).
10	Forced sex work in changing location Victims are forced into sex work where the location of exploitation frequently changes. Locations include streets, clients' residence, hotels or 'pop-up' brothels in short-term rented property. Victims are frequently advertised online.
11	Trafficking for personal gratification Victims are trafficked to residential sites controlled by offenders and sexually exploited for the offenders' own gratification. Some victims may be confined to the site for a long period of time.
Criminal Exploitation
12	Forced gang-related criminality Victims are forced to undertake gang related criminal activities, most commonly relating to drug networks. Victims are often children who are forced by gangs to transport drugs and money to and from urban areas to suburban areas and market and coastal towns.
13	Forced labour in illegal activities Victims are forced to provide labour to offenders for illegal purposes. The most common example is victims forced to cultivate cannabis in private residences.
14	Forced acquisitive crime Victims are forced by offenders to carry out acquisitive crimes such as shoplifting and pickpocketing. Offenders may provide food and accommodation to victims but rarely pay them.
15	Forced begging Victims are transported by offenders to locations to beg on the streets for money, which is then taken by offenders. Victims are often children or vulnerable adults.
16	Trafficking for forced sham marriage Traffickers transport EU national victims to the UK and sell these victims to an exploiter in a one-off transaction. Exploiters marry victims to gain immigration advantages and often sexually abuse them.
17	Financial fraud (including benefit fraud) Victims are exploited financially; most commonly their identity documents are taken and used to claim benefits. This type often occurs alongside other types.

Labour / Criminal Exploitation was the most commonly recorded type of abuse in 2016, closely followed by Sexual Exploitation and then Domestic Servitude.

Victim Data

9,410 people were referred to the National Referral Mechanism (NRM) between 2014 and 2016, and as depicted below (Fig 1) 12% of those were identified in the North East, which had more potential victims than Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland combined.

Fig 1: Region / Country of potential victims referred to the NRM between 2014 and 2016

Fig 2: Most common countries of origin of adult potential victims referred to NRM in 2016

51% of victims were female and 49% male in 2016.

Case Study

A slavery gang in Newcastle was jailed in May 2017 for a total of 32 years after trafficking and exploiting vulnerable Polish workers.

The four men were part of a £1m operation that enticed their victims from their native country to the UK with the promise of well-paid jobs.

But, when they arrived, they were forced to live in appalling living conditions, where they had to scavenge and roam the streets looking for basic furnishings such as mattresses, and were then tricked into low-paid work.

The gang then controlled their victims' finances by taking their bank cards and wages and leaving them with "pittance" to live on.

The operation was described as a "family business", and ran between June 2014 and September 2016.

During that time, the Polish victims were enticed to the North East with the promise of well-paid Jobs where they could earn at least four times their wages in Poland. But, when they arrived on Tyneside, the workers were put-up in sub-standard, cramped accommodation, which lacked basic facilities and were known as "tents".

The victims were put to work through a legitimate agency picking through litter at recycling plants, where the pay was low and the hours long.

The gang took control of their victims' bank accounts and took their wages and used abuse and violence against anyone who resisted, when the victims complained, they were physically assaulted, spat at or their families were threatened.

The victims were taken to get National Insurance numbers, they were taken to banks to open accounts, but all their documentation, and particularly their bank cards, were taken from them and withheld on very strict terms.

The victims, both men and women, were then left with just "a few pounds a week" to live on as the gang pocketed the rest.

The gang used their victims' bank accounts to launder hundreds of thousands of pounds. The Police finally became involved when one of the workers reported what had been going on and an investigation was launched.

Where Can Adult Victims be Found or Identified?

Victims of modern slavery can be found or identified anywhere. There are certain industries where they are more prevalent, such as nail bars, car washes, agriculture and fishing, building sites, warehousing, manufacturing (sweatshops) and the sex industry. Other high risk situations include when there is a need for a sudden injection of workers into the work force, such as seasonal staff or construction for a major event. However, victims may also pass through transport hubs, health services and other public places or be found in private homes.

Victims Reaction

Victims may not recognise themselves as a victim or want to talk to the authorities or be formally referred for support. This should not prevent information about potential modern slavery being passed to the police (and completion of a Duty to Notify form for relevant organisations) which could help the police identify a crime.

Victims can be traumatised and there are a number of barriers that may make it difficult for them to come forward or co-operate with the authorities:

- Unaware they are a victim
- Unaware help is available
- Language barriers and / or mistrust in their interpreter
(Crime gangs have been known to use corrupt interpreters)
- Controlled movement
- Fear of repercussions (for themselves or their families)
- Always accompanied by a perpetrator
- Isolation
- Feel they are still better off than in their home country situation
- Fears over immigration status
- Involvement in criminal activity
- Self-blame
- Stigma.

The Legal Framework: Modern Slavery

International Framework

The Human Rights Act 1998 came into force in the UK in 2000 and within Section 6, articles 4 and 5, there is a description of the legal position in relation to Modern Slavery, although this does not specifically refer to human trafficking.

The UK Government also signed the Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings in 2007 (ratified by the UK in 2008), which led to the creation of the UK's NRM in 2009, which is a victim identification and support process. This is designed to make it easier for all the different agencies that could be involved in a trafficking case (for example, the Police, Home Office, the National Crime Agency and Local Authorities) to co-operate, share information about potential victims and facilitate their access to advice, accommodation and support.

The Convention requires that potential victims of trafficking are provided with a period of a minimum of 30 days recovery and reflection, during which they will receive support, including accommodation, subsistence and access to relevant medical and legal services, and potential eligibility for discretionary leave to remain if they are recognised as a victim. The UK provides this support to potential victims referred to the NRM for a longer period of 45 days.

Domestic Framework

The Modern Slavery Act 2015 came into force in England and Wales in October 2015 and included a number of provisions extending existing support for victims of human trafficking (as above) to victims of slavery, servitude and forced and compulsory labour. The act also:

- Consolidates and simplifies existing offences into a single act
- Ensures that perpetrators receive suitably severe punishments for modern slavery crimes (up to and including life sentences)
- Introduces a legal defence for victims of slavery and trafficking if they have been forced into criminal activity
- Requires businesses over a certain size to disclose each year what action they have taken to ensure there is no modern slavery in their business or supply chains.

The Care Act 2014 came into force on 1 April 2015, which also specifically refers to modern slavery and the legal duties that Local Authorities have in relation to safeguarding adults.

Reporting Suspected Modern Slavery Offences

Any public sector worker identifying a potential victim of modern slavery should follow their organisation's own safeguarding procedures. This will include filling in a National Referral Mechanism (NRM) form or Duty to Notify form, if that is part of your organisation's safeguarding procedures as a first responder organisation.

Only first responder organisations can make a NRM referral:

- The Home Office
- Local Authorities
- Police
- Poppy Project
- Trafficking Awareness Raising Alliance
- Migrant Help
- Kalayaan
- Medaille Trust
- National Crime Agency
- Gangmasters Licensing Agency
- Salvation Army.

(This list is not exhaustive).

Consider risks to others - 'Think Family'

Consideration must also be given as to whether anyone else is at risk. This may include children or other adults with care and support needs. Whilst actions may be limited in relation to the individual themselves, there may be a duty to take action to safeguard others. Should there be a concern regarding children in the care of a victim of modern slavery, concerns must be reported to Children's Social Care. See: Safeguarding and Promoting the Welfare of Adults and Children at Risk Guidance (signposted on page 16).

Additionally, anyone suspecting a case of modern slavery should always report this by using one of the following methods:

Phoning 999 if there is an immediate risk of harm.

Reporting to the police on 101 or the Modern Slavery Helpline on 08000 121 700 if there is not an immediate risk of harm.

The Gangmasters and Labour Abuse Authority (GLAA) on 0800 432 0804 or 0115 959 7032 (outside office hours)

Email: intelligence@gla.gsi.gov.uk

Modern Slavery Human Trafficking Centre on 0844 778 2406

You don't need to be sure that modern slavery is taking place or fully understand the types and definitions to report your concerns.
